

National Post
Saturday, July 26, 2008
Page: A17
Section: Letters
Byline: Ron Banerjee
Source: National Post

Re: Sri Lanka's 'Black July' Riots, 25 Years Later, editorial, July 24.

The National Post correctly states that many Canadians have forgotten Sri Lanka's oppression of its (mostly) Hindu Tamil minority, thanks to the brutality of the Tigers. But an unanswered question remains: What exactly were democracies like Canada doing while this oppression was going on?

Today, Hindu minorities are being raped and slaughtered by the thousands by Islamic dictatorships in Malaysia, Bangladesh and Kashmir. What are Western democracies doing to halt this oppression?

Hindu minorities will have no option but to commence armed struggle against their oppressors if the West continues its hypocrisy and callous indifference.

Ron Banerjee, Toronto.